SESSION SUMMARY

SITE: LEANING TOWER OF PIZZA

.....this was another interesting and confusing site.... the overall outstanding data consisted of curving, curving up, curving around, curving down, curving, curving and more curving.....the "feeling" was one of being natural, not man-made. While probing Stage II's, however, a series of angles, squares and triangles became apparent which made it apparent that a man-made structure was a part of the site gestalt. My conscious could not combine the constant curving and roundness to angular associated with man-made structures. This goes to show that the "major" gestalt of a man-made structure need not be angular. Good!

The Aesthetic Impact associated with this site was one of leaning. I had the feeling that as I stood on the site that I was leaning and would fall at any minute second.
It was a strange feeling.
